Why is someone killing our cats?

DEBRA FOX

POLICE are stepping up investigations after a total of ten cats have been victims of suspected poisoning in the last two years.

All the dead cats were from the Cross Close and Falklands Road area of the town, and all are thought to have been poisoned with antifreeze.

Police believe the poisonings to be deliberate, and are stepping up their investigations in the hope of finding the person responsible.

PCSO Kayla Packman, of Haverhill Police, has been handing out leaflets in the area, to make people aware of the consequences of poisoning an animal.

Trudy Birch, of Cross Close, says her teenage daughter has been "broken" by the death of their one-and-a-half year old tortoiseshell Simba in 2011.

Jasmin, now 13, raised her pet from eight weeks old.

Trudy, 43, said: "I want whoever has done this to read this story, and if they have a heart or a conscience they should know it was my daughter's cat and we had to come home and tell our 11-year-old her baby had been put to sleep."

Simba had a fit in the family garden and had to be rushed to the vet. After three days, her kidneys were failing and the family had to allow vets to put her down.

The vets said it was a form of chemical poisoning, and they suspected antifreeze.

Trudy, husband Glenn, 44, Jasmin and her brother Jamie, 11, have since rehomed other cats, but they're too afraid to let them out after 7pm in case they meet a similar fate.

Other residents in Cross Close, including mum-of-two Karen Thompson and pensioners Dennis and Jean Bishop have also been put off having cats again after their pets were poisoned.

Karen, 47, lives with husband Dave, 55, and daughters Chloe, 14, and Abbie, 11.

The family's British Blue cat Mister was found dead by a neighbour in 2009. Then Bob, a brown male, and Ellie, a black and white female, were both rushed to the vets in 2010 with kidney failure before being put to sleep.

It has taken three years for the family to feel able to bring cats back into the home. Current cats Tilly and

Making a very BIG collection

Picture by David Johnson

VOLUNTEERS across Haverhill sacrificed their time to give a big cash injection to Diabetes UK.

Tesco stores across the country joined in with the charity's three day Big Collection event in a bid to raise awareness about the life-changing illness.

Chris Turk, who suffers from Type 1 diabetes, was in charge of the collection at Haverhill Tesco, in Cangle Road.

The volunteers raised £700.

Chris said: "I want to thank the people of Haverhill for their generosity. It was a very good result for a small town."

As well as taking collections, the volunteers were on hand to provide information to family and friends of those with Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes as well as newly-diagnosed patients.

The illness occurs when the body does not produce any or enough insulin.

Chris said: "They were quite keen to find out more about the work Diabetes UK do."

If you live in Haverhill and want to find out how Diabetes UK can help you, contact group secretary Tracey Vernon at Colchester and East Essex Voluntary Group for Diabetes UK, 9 Prince Charles Road, Colchester, Essex, CO2 8NS or call 01206 520401.

Town will get a voice over future vision

PLANS created to shape the future of Haverhill for current and future residents have been passed through – despite being widely criticised.

But protesters have been reassured that their voices will be heard after all as Haverhill Town Council prepares to fight for what the town needs.

Draft versions of Vision 2031 documents for Haverhill were agreed by St Edmundsbury Borough Council at a meeting on September 30.

This draft did not include any of the lengthy objections made by officials and the public during the consultation period, which ran from June to August.

DEBRA FOX

But borough councillors have made assurances that all complaints will still be addressed.

Town Mayor Cllr Roger André was at the full council meeting.

He said: "There will be meetings with the Borough prior to the planning inspector's meetings, and we are delighted that they have agreed to this because there are things we need to try and resolve."

Main issues flagged up by the town mayor include the town's great need for a railway link to connect with Cambridge and a proposed extension to East Town Park – on a triangle of land between Calford Green, Coupals Road and the Wilsey Estate.

Haverhill's population is estimated to rise by another 10,000 over the next two decades, and a high street revamp has been another of the main calls.

County councillor Tony Brown, who represents Haverhill East and Kedington, has been one of those opposed to the Borough's version of the plans from the start.

He branded the plans "a big dose of housing, and nothing more" and was angry that the initial plans did not provide further facilities outside of new homes for 37,000 people.

The town Mayor added that though the town council was disappointed with the notice paid to their comments before approval, they are confident that changes will be made before the plans are implemented.

Cllr André said: "We are pleased to have the chance to discuss and come to an arrangement with the Borough before the planning inspector has to step in."

A spokeswoman for St Edmundsbury Borough Council confirmed that the planning inspector will receive all comments submitted during public consultation, and will consider them in deciding if Vision 2031 is fit for purpose.

Police appeal for help to catch cat killer

Ferne stay indoors all the time.

Karen said: "It was horrendous, traumatic and very, very upsetting." Jean Bishop, who is in her late 70s, lost her black and white cat Felix only a few weeks ago.

She hadn't see him for about 24 hours, which was unusual, but then he appeared at the bottom of the garden. There was nothing the vets could do to save him.

Jean said: "I have had cats all my life, and I have never had anything like this happen. It's unbelievable that anybody could do such a thing."

Elaine and Paul Hewes, of Falklands Road, have lost two cats in two years to antifreeze poisoning.

Jay, an 8-year-old ginger female was put to sleep in 2011, and six month old Poppy died in 2012.

Elaine became suspicious after both of her pets displayed the same symptoms and Poppy died so soon after Jay.

She said: "It was very upsetting and it just puts you off having another one."

"I would love to have a cat around but I wouldn't put one through that again."

Elaine, 54, contacted the police to report the incident.

All of the cats were treated at Swayne and Partners, on Hamlet Road.

PCSO Packman said they were doing what they could to catch whoever was responsible. But she appealed for help. "We really need information from members of the public," she said.

Call Haverhill Police on 101 if you have seen anything suspicious or think you know anything about the poisonings.

You can also call the RSPCA cruelty line on 0300 1234999.

Tips to keep oil safe and secure this winter

A DROP in temperature means winter is just around the corner – and oil thefts are on the rise.

Police are urging residents across the county with oil tanks to be vigilant in keeping their fuel safe from thieves.

The Suffolk Police Community Safety Unit are sending out safety advice after 30 thefts were made in February 2012.

On average, 14 thefts a month were reported between November and March last year.

Community Safety Manager Alan Osborne said: "It can be very useful to invest in security lights, locks and alarms, which can deter a would-be criminal.

"It is worth considering investing in an alarm; there are many types now on the market and some of these can be linked to your house alarm.

"Furthermore, keep the tank itself as secure as possible and try to leave it unlocked for as short a time as possible."

Contact Suffolk Police on 101 and ask for your area's crime reduction officer.

Inspirational Charlie takes home the gold

A HARDWORKING young man is celebrating a milestone birthday at the same time as receiving a prestigious award.

Charlie Cook, 21, of Arrandene Road, Haverhill, travelled to London after completing the Duke of Edinburgh Gold Award.

He was given his certificate during a visit to St James Palace on September 25.

Charlie was diagnosed with Autistic Spectrum Disorder at the age of 4, but has not let the life-changing condition get in the way of him reaching his goals.

Well known in his local area for his voluntary work and hobbies, Charlie helps out at the Theatre Royal Bury St Edmunds and WH Smith in Haverhill.

The 21-year-old is also hoping to become a Cub Scout leader and has been making a name for himself in Haverhill with a range of homemade bags and cushions.

His mum Jo said: "We feel now is a good opportunity to thank everyone who has shown Charlie support, care, kindness, friendship and encouragement over the years.

"We thank each and every one of you from the bottom of our hearts and want you to know that you have made a huge difference in making his hopes and dreams come true."

Charlie is searching for a job to add to his list of activities.

Jo said: "He has been working hard to find employment for the past year and his most recent goal is to achieve this.

"So if there is anyone out there who feels they could help Charlie make his dream come true we would love to hear from you.

"We would like to say well done to Charlie, for your strength, enthusiasm and determination in everything you do."

STRIKING GOLD: Charlie Cook went to St James' Palace to receive his Duke of Edinburgh Gold award.

Jailed! But will you help raise bail?

A GROUP of offenders are searching for your donations to raise bail.

Superintendent Terry Byford, Police and Crime Commissioner Tim Passmore and Suffolk County Councillors are some of those set to be "jailed" at Ipswich Crown Court on Tuesday after a dummy police raid.

The group are experiencing life on the other side in aid of Ormiston Children & Families Trust – but they'll only be let out when enough has been raised for the charity.

Superintendent Byford said: "I am really pleased to be able to support a fantastic charity like Ormiston, which is responsible for some really important work in our county.

"By taking part in this event hopefully I, and all the other 'criminals' who are participating, will be able to raise lots of money towards this very worthwhile cause."

Your vote saves town from that unpopular book

HAVERHILL has lost out on a spot of fame in a newly-released book.

But celebrations are in order, as it's escaped being voted one of the crappiest towns in the country.

Crap Towns Returns, released today by Sam Jordison and Dan Kieran, highlights the worst, dullest and ugliest places to live as chosen by the British public.

Haverhill was voted into the top 100 in July but securing a spot in the top 50, and the book, was dependent on the public vote.

Town Mayor Cllr Roger Andre says he is delighted that Haverhill did not make the final cut.

He said: "I am delighted Haverhill has been excluded from the list – we knew it would be.

"Anyone who has visited Haverhill in the last 10 years will know why we were.

"It's a great place to live and there are brilliant cultural opportunities here."

DEBRA FOX

Prior to the public vote, Executive Principal of Samuel Ward Academy Howard Lay and Castle Partnership Academy Trust Principal Madeline Vigar both praised the town and its young people for constant achievements.

Neighbouring town Bury St Edmunds also made the list at 49, a factor, Sam Jordison says, that probably kept Haverhill out of the book.

He said: "I can see that people from towns round about get annoyed with Bury St Edmunds because the people are quite snotty about the surrounding areas."

Mr Jordison revealed that a portion of the voters, who took to Twitter to declare locations #craptown or #notacraptown, had nice things to say about Haverhill which meant its reputation was protected.

He said: "Quite a few people spoke out in defence of Haverhill and it was just overwhelmed by the other towns.

"Maybe not enough people got interested in poor old Haverhill – there's always next year!"

London graced the top of the table, rounding up the most votes from natives and visitors alike, and Sheerness scraped in at number 50.

Shockingly, York graced the list at number five, and Bradford, Southampton and the Prime Minister's hometown of Chipping Norton also made the top 10.

Mr Jordison said that although he doesn't agree with all of the choices made by the public, he always sees why people have made them – the reasons for voting are not always clean cut.

CONSERVATIVE: Chris Wheatley

LABOUR: Lorraine Weston

Meet your election candidates

DEBRA FOX

THERE are four candidates in the running for the vacant seat on Haverhill Town Council.

Voting closes at 10pm tonight for the seat for Haverhill North.

Chris Wheatley is the Conservative candidate, and has lived in Haverhill for 14 years.

Married with two children, Mr Wheatley says what he wants is simple - to transform Haverhill into a place he and his children want to live in the future.

He said: "I don't have any grand schemes except that I want to fix things and make it a nice place to live. I've done some things, I've travelled a bit and seen some things and now I want to get involved and give it a go."

Mr Wheatley also hopes to look into West Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Group's report on health for Haverhill, and involve the town's people in discussions on Vision 2031.

Lorraine Weston is standing for Labour and wants to address the issues on the ward, as well as the town.

The mother-of-two says she knows the area inside and out after 42 years of living in Haverhill.

Barry Robbins is standing for UKIP, and was nominated by former town councillor Bryan Hawes, who resigned from his seat in Haverhill North earlier this year.

UKIP: Barry Robbins

He said: "I just want to see a change from the way we are living now and the way things are going."

Mr Robbins wants to address problems with Haverhill's health service, and also the social issues which he says are affecting the town.

Frankie Boyle, of Elm Close, Haverhill, is also running in the election as an Independent candidate.

The Weekly News were unable to contact Mr Boyle for comment.

Whoever wins the seat in the Haverhill North by-election tonight will replace Mr Hawes.

Voting closes at 10pm, and you can vote at New Cangle Primary School, on Chapple Drive, the Methodist Church Rooms, on Camps Road, and Haverhill Rugby Club on School Lane.

Alleged assault in prison

FOUR men have appeared in court charged in connection with an alleged assault in a prison.

The assault, which is said to have taken place at Highpoint Prison, Stradishall, on January 6 this year reportedly left Casman Banjoko injured.

At Ipswich Crown Court on October 4, Adam Boyce, 26, of HMP Highpoint and Mohammed Aktar Hussain, 32, of Daling Way, Bow, East London pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm.

They are due to stand trial in December.

Two other men, Mohammed Ali Hussain, 25, of HMP Highpoint, and Dastan Mohammad, 23, of Laurel Crescent, Croydon, pleaded guilty to the same offence.

They will be sentenced at a later date.

Homes now found for men sleeping rough in allotments

DEBRA FOX

HOMELESS people who had made dilapidated sheds on allotments in Haverhill their home, have now been housed amid fears for their safety.

Two men – one Polish and one Portuguese – had spent months bedding in garden sheds on the Duddery Hill allotments, even adding home comforts including a chest of drawers and a clothes airer.

But after threats were made against them and vandals destroyed the makeshift shelter, police stepped up their efforts to get a proper roof over their heads.

The Polish man has now been given accommodation in Milton and the Portuguese national is due to be moved into a room in Haverhill this week.

Before the men moved in, crime and anti-social behaviour was rife on the Duddery Hill allotments, but PCSO Lorna Chapman said it stopped when the men were living there.

She said: "Before the homeless people were living on the site, it was being used for anti-social behaviour, drugs, and drinking. Nothing has been stolen from the allotments after the men moved in."

Wisdom Toothbrushes, which owns the allotments, now has plans to step in and transform the area in a bid to get rid of its bad reputation.

PCSO Chapman said: "Somebody is going to be employed to come and clear the site and take away the badly damaged garden sheds."

"But they have the same attitude as me. They're not going to rip down sheds when people are still living there."

"We are all human beings and we all deserve somewhere safe to live."

The overgrown brambles and trees will also be cut back to make parrelling the site easier for police.

Getting rid of the clutter and mess also means that nearby residents can see onto the site more clearly.

The PCSO said: "I know of the area now, and we will patrol it to make sure there's no further anti-social behaviour and rough sleeping."

Inspector Peter Ferrie, of Haverhill Police, said that he wanted the rough sleepers and other problems on the allotments to be dealt with as a policing priority for the town's Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT).

Former hotel boss pays back stolen £5,000

A FRAUDULENT hotel worker has paid back the money he stole from his bosses.

Taro Rawles, 41, of Vetch Walk, Haverhill, was sentenced to six months suspended for two years in August after defrauding his bosses out of more than £5,000.

Rawles, former manager of the Days Inn Haverhill, on Phoenix Road, took £5,051.57 from the hotel by authorising refunds onto his personal card.

He was also ordered to carry out 250 hours unpaid work and pay £400 costs with a victim surcharge of £80 at Chelmsford Crown Court.

The 41-year-old has now paid back the full amount he took.

They must all be laughing at us

IN regards to tolling the A14, certainly not! What next? The A11, A12, A13, the list is endless.

As soon as Felixstowe became a container port the whole of the A14 should have been upgraded to motorway status.

Since the end of World War II successive governments have failed and failed miserably to give us a road and rail network that is needed to progress into the future and beyond.

Here in the east the Beeching Axe in reality signed our death warrant, something that we will never recover from, and the roads? Well, we must be the laughing stock of Western Europe. All we ever hear is "there is no money", yet we seem to have plenty to give in foreign aid though.

The UK way of make do and mend doesn't really cut it anymore, what will it be like when the latest generation of gigantic container ships dock at Felixstowe, and London Gateway is fully operational? Gridlock: we really will be on the road to nowhere, our whole infrastructure should have began after World War II. But of course, we didn't have any money then either.

WALKING GROUP: TWO Linton ladies have started a once-a-month walking group. The first one went very well in spite of it being a slightly rainy day. Fourteen people turned up and they walked to Abington and back through Hildersham, a distance of about six miles.

They stopped at a pub in Abington for drinks, a chat and a rest. The next walk will be on October 20. It will take a different route. All welcome. Meet at the top of Church Lane at 11am prompt.

Further details from Pamela Phipps, 897858 or Sheila Bennet, 890171.

GLASS FAIR: The Cambridge Glass fair was held at Linton Village College on September 22.

This all-day event attracted a fair number of visitors to view the many varieties of glass on display.

FIRST AID: Conkers Children's Centre will be holding a first aid course on October 16 from 6-7.30pm for those with children under 5.

It will give advice on understanding common childhood incidents and also how to do baby CPR.

To book or for more information call the centre on 893594.

Hadstock

TWO paintings by Hadstock residents now hang in the village hall meeting room, also, an enlarged photograph by Harry Villiers which won the photo competition.

The next project will be to upgrade the décor in the main hall.

The parish council have received a grant from Uttlesford District Council towards the provision of two new pieces of play equipment on the recreation ground, which should be installed later this year. The recreation ground has now been approved by Fields in Trust for "QE11" status, which will protect it as recreational ground for the future.

There will be a disco party in the village hall on Saturday from 7pm. It will be a 70s fancy dress party with a Best Dancer competition. Proceeds to ACT Breast Cancer charity. Tickets from 892379 and 890242.

The inaugural Hadstock ladies doubles tennis championship in aid of the Friends of St Botolph's, Hadstock, was held at Mallyons on September 17. Ten ladies competed, eight were from Hadstock. Partners were drawn from a hat and each pair played the first of seven games with the other pairs. Rain stopped play so tennis was replaced with a liquid lunch. Play resumed on September 24 when all the matches were completed.

The Harvest Festival service was held on September 22.

It was taken by the Rev Wendy Moore. This is the first service she has taken after several months of ill health.

The church was decorated with flowers. There was a collection of fruit and vegetables which were taken afterwards to Symonds House Nursing Home in Linton. Hadstock Silver Band played the harvest hymns.

After the service a Harvest Lunch was held in the village hall.

It was a bring and share Sunday roast, 48 people joined in.

After the first course there were lots of delicious puddings and finally cheese and biscuits.

PRIORITIES: Inspector Peter Ferrie

Town's police want to know what you think

PRIORITIES at Haverhill's next Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) meeting will be more well-rounded than before as police open the polls online.

High street parking has been a constant focus of the SNT for months, and Inspector Peter Ferrie says this is because the same people are voting each time.

To combat this pattern, the force have decided to create an online poll and live stream of the meeting so everyone can have their say.

On average, 40 people submit their votes every quarter.

Inspector Ferrie said: "The idea is to try and move the SNT forward."

"I am sure that people who don't attend the meeting have other things that they are worried about in Haverhill, besides the current priorities."

"We seem to be stuck in a kind of rut, and I'm trying to break us out of that and find out what the town is really worried about."

After the last SNT meeting on September 9, Inspector Ferrie expressed his disappointment that the residents of Haverhill had elected again to vote parking problems as high priority.

Issues with "boy racers" and "joy riders" and anti-social behaviour in a cluster of Haverhill streets were also chosen as the next quarter's priorities.

These topped the list shortly after a spate of late-night burglaries in town and a rise in drugs crime, compared to the three year average.

Inspector Ferrie said: "We need to have priorities that they SNT can actually solve – the current problems aren't going to go away whatever the SNT does."

The next SNT meeting will not contain any group discussion time for attendees – instead, priorities will be written down as people come into the meeting.

These will then be shared online for viewers to make a choice.

To make your vote for the next meeting on December 9, tweet @PoliceHaverhill or email peter.ferrie@suffolk.pnn.police.uk from the beginning of December. Or contact the Weekly News: debra.fox@cambridge-news.co.uk.

We're in safe hands

Reporter DEBRA FOX finds out more about the work of Haverhill's Town Pastors... and the importance of a Freddo bar

NEVER underestimate the good work a chocolate bar and a drink of water can do.

If you're from Haverhill, you might have come across the Town Pastors before on their weekly patrol of the town centre – they might even have treated you to one of their Freddo bars.

Launched in 2011 and led by Captain Andrew Payne, of St Mary's Church, the group of 15 men and women – all volunteers – take it in turns to pair up and hit the town from 9pm on Friday to 3am on Saturday.

Comprised of volunteers from the Haverhill and District churches, the pastors are first aid trained, ready for action and prepared to lend an ear or a hand to anyone who needs it.

But there's more to their work than a kind word and a sweet treat.

Cpt Payne said: "The bottom line is that we want Haverhill to go out and have a good time, but do it safely.

"We all do silly things; we are there to be extra eyes and ears and step in and help if things get out of hand."

During their weekly duties, town pastors have stepped in to stop fights, administer first aid and help drunk and disorderly people regain their control, supplying them with water and chocolate for a much-needed energy boost.

Their intervention in certain situations, Cpt Payne says, has prevented people from ending their Friday night in police custody, or returning home on Saturday morning with a criminal record.

The pastor said: "We are not just town guides – if someone is hurt or injured we do know what we're talking about.

"The police are there for the law, and not to make friends with people or listen to their problems. We think it helps to have someone to listen to you and for them to know we're there."

Janet Ashby and her partner helped a man out of a dark place on one of

ON PATROL: Haverhill's Town Pastors are appealing for more volunteers their patrols.

She said: "He was the worse for drink. We went to speak to him, he was very distressed. We talked to him for at least an hour as he was suicidal and had personal problems; he said he had nothing to live for.

"A few weeks later the man caught up with two other town pastors on a Friday night and thanked them, thinking it was us.

"He said he had managed to sort some of his problems out and was pleased that he was able to talk to us when he was at his lowest."

Inspector Peter Ferrie, of Haverhill Police, says that the pastors provide invaluable service and support to the local police officers.

Having them in action means the town is not left unprotected at a key time of the week if the police are called out elsewhere.

Inspector Ferrie said: "They sit with people who are upset or vulnerable and give them the time they need on a busy Friday.

"That way, the police can focus on enforcing the law and keeping the public safe."

Haverhill Town Pastors are in need of more volunteers.

If you think you can help, contact Cpt Payne on 07976124095 or email:

CAMBRIDGE SAFFRON WALDEN NEWMARKET HAVERHILL ELY ST IVES LONDON

CLIMB ON: Bruce has been training hard for the challenge.

A mountain of fundraising for Bruce, 60

TURNING 60 usually means it's time for a bit of well-earned relaxation.

But one Haverhill man is celebrating his birthday in a totally different way.

Bruce Davidson is preparing to climb 5,895 metres to the top of Kilimanjaro in aid of the Rosie Maternity Hospital in Cambridge.

Bruce, who turns 60 today, will travel to Africa on Sunday and hopes to reach the summit on October 19.

The father-of-four said: "Rather than just go down to the pub, I thought I would do something different and something memorable.

"Two of my children were born in the Rosie so I thought it appropriate to raise some money for them."

Bruce's last fundraising attempt for the Rosie took place in 1991, when he ran the London Marathon and raised £2,000.

This time around, he hopes to match the total.

Bruce will travel to Tanzania and take on Kilimanjaro as part of an 11 strong team.

They will have five days to complete the ascent, but on the day they reach the top the group faces an 18 hour stretch, spending a few minutes at the summit before descending again.

He said: "I decided at the beginning of this year that I wanted to do this and I started training three months ago."

Bruce has been doing intensive circuit training and going for 20 mile walks once a week.

But just feeling fighting fit does not make you ready for Kilimanjaro.

Bruce, of Jupiter Close, said: "I'm excited that I'm going to be taking on this challenge but I'm apprehensive about the climate and altitude.

"I hope I'm not one of the people who doesn't make it to the top after all of this hard work and fundraising.

"I want to make sure I do it." Visit www.justgiving.com/brucedavidson to make a donation to the climb.

A show of many sins comes to Haverhill

A POLITICAL activist and much-loved comedian is bringing his show to a stop in Haverhill.

Mark Thomas has given himself a year to commit 100 acts of minor dissent – and on his arrival in town, he will discuss how far he has come.

The comedian is touring fresh off the success of a sold-out Edinburgh Fringe stint, which showcased the committed acts so far.

From the smallest actions to the grandest confrontations, the performance promises to be hilarious, subversive and mainly legal.

With a Channel 4 series, books, documentaries and a radio show under his belt, theatre-goers have plenty of reason to watch his performance.

Catch Mark's 100 Acts of Minor Dissent at Haverhill Arts Centre on November 29 from 8pm.

Call the box office on 01440 714140 or visit haverhillartscentre.co.uk to book online. Tickets are £15 or £10.

Town all set to be dazzled in dance show for all ages

BUDDING dancers great and small are preparing for a show to entertain the town.

Pupils at the Lisa Mason School of Dance will wow crowds at the Arts Centre on Saturday and Sunday with a jam-packed performance of dance.

The dancers will treat the audience to ballet, tap, modern and acrobatics routines in their big show of the year.

Lisa has around 130 pupils under her wing, ranging from 3 to adult taking part in the event.

She said: "Afterwards it always seems like a great achievement for everybody, and the kids absolutely love it.

"Some of them have never performed before but I know after the show they can't wait to get back to class."

The children are also taking part in the town's pantomime, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, at the Arts Centre in December.

The dancing school will perform at 2pm and 7pm on Saturday October 12, and 2pm on Sunday October 13.

Tickets are available through the Arts Centre box office and cost £10 for adults and £5 for children. Everyone is welcome, call 01440 714140.

Alexia is award-winning writer: aged 13 and blind

EMMA HIGGINBOTHAM

ALEXIA Sloane, it's safe to say, is not your average 13-year-old. While many teens spend their free time slumped in front of the telly, Alexia busies herself working on her novel. While some are poring over Facebook, Alexia is practising one of several musical instruments. And while others might be reading the Twilight saga, Alexia is just nearing the end of Plato's Republic – all five volumes of it. "But not in ancient Greek," she says. "That's my next plan".

Fiercely intelligent, the Comberton Village College pupil is tri-lingual, has several GCSEs and AS levels to her name, and has also won a number of creative writing competitions.

But although she hates words like 'in spite of' or 'despite', I'm duty-bound to point out that Alexia is, in fact, completely blind. Born fully-sighted, Alexia had just turned 2 when her parents, Richard and Isabelle, noticed that something was wrong with their normally bright and happy daughter. On holiday in France, the family were enjoying a party when Alexia became unusually distressed.

"She was howling for no reason, and we couldn't calm her down," recalls Isabelle, a teacher at Hills Road Sixth Form College. "She never used to do that, she was a very calm child. With hindsight, I realise that these were the signs that perhaps she was only seeing shadows. But because she was only 2, she couldn't express that she couldn't see."

The family continued their holiday, "but it was quite clear something was wrong; she would ask where somebody was who was sitting next to her," says Isabelle. "So we took her to hospital in France and they said 'Oh, she's probably short-sighted'. But we didn't think that was the case." An MRI scan confirmed their fears: "She was found to have a tumour. We were very shocked, especially as she was born without any health issues."

Alexia was diagnosed with neurofibromatosis type 1 (NF-1), a condition that means she has – and always will have – a benign tumour at the centre of her optic nerves.

Initially, doctors hoped to operate, "but the tumour being where it was, and with her being just 2, it was very risky. So a few days later they said 'Actually we're going to give her chemotherapy for 18 months,'" says Isabelle.

"They were hoping it would reduce the tumour and she might keep a little bit of her vision, but unfortunately it all went very quickly after that – within eight or 10 weeks. She would say 'Hmm, the sun hasn't risen today; it's very dark,' which was a clear sign that she couldn't see any more."

Can she remember what it's like to be able to see? "Not really," says Alexia, "which is a bit strange seeing as quite a lot of my writing is rather visual, I'm told." So she can't see anything at all? "No. I like to say it's like air."

"And I have quite weird ways of visualising people," she adds. "I see people's voices as colours."

From the beginning, the Sloanes were aware that they had a very bright child on their hands. Alexia picked up Braille astonishingly quickly – she could both read and write using the complex method at just 4 years old. And although she had to have more chemo at 8, regular MRI scans, and even a gruelling eight-hour operation to correct her scoliosis, or curvature of the spine – another condition related to NF-1 – Alexia has only ever complained about one thing: missing school. "It's the only thing she's ever upset about," smiles Isabelle.

Because at school, Alexia thrives. What's her favourite subject? "I have a few. I really like the creative side of English, of course, and music: I play recorder, piano, organ and I sing in a few choirs. And languages: I speak French, Spanish and English, I took GCSE Chinese when I was 12, and I'm also learning German, Italian and Latin."

But Alexia's true love is creative writing, and she has the trophies to prove it. The most recent addition to a table proudly covered with awards is her prize for winning the prestigious Henrietta Branford Short Story competition earlier this year.

"I wrote a sort of science fiction story, which I was informed later was extremely funny – that was totally unintentional! I always write things like that in about half an hour; they say you should spend weeks on it. But I said 'No, it should be OK.' It clearly was, and in July Alexia was swept to London to collect her award from Dame Jacqueline Wilson.

Living with her parents and sister Melissa, 8, in Trumpington, Cambridge, Alexia writes whenever she has a spare moment, using a neat little Braille computer. She's currently working on a novel set in World War Two: 'It's about a German boy, anti-Nazi of course, who doesn't agree with what's going on in his country. He meets a gypsy girl who shares similar views to him, and they break into a concentration camp to try to save a group of Jewish children.

"It's called The Piccolo and The Voice, because he plays the piccolo and she sings, although that is subject to change because I've changed the viewpoint quite dramatically: it's now told from the point of view of the piccolo. Which could possibly sound extremely strange and perhaps quite childish," she adds, "but I think it could work reasonably well."

Currently 18,000 words into the book, Alexia is aiming for 20,000 to make a novella: "She would like to send it to publishers, but probably thinks she will get refusals," says Isabelle. "But if that happens then she'll self-publish, because she'd like to have an actual copy of it."

It's remarkable stuff, but Alexia's intelligence, and her condition, has a notable downside: "Because of what she has, and because of her maturity, she's really quite isolated socially," says Isabelle.

"It's always been an issue. Because she's always been more mature than her age-group, the children never really found any level ground with her; at primary school she didn't really have any friends; they just wanted to run around the playground."

"And the problem at Comberton," adds Alexia, "is I could be saying 'What do you think of this piece?' And they'll be saying 'Did you watch EastEnders last night?'"

"But I don't really mind. I have a few acquaintances, and a couple of friends who are in the Sixth Form."

At school, Alexia gets around with the help of sighted guides, and by using a stick: "Unfortunately! I don't approve of it," she says. "It's because she thinks it makes her stand out from the crowd," explains Isabelle. "She's always refused the idea of the cane because she thinks only old people have canes, and she doesn't want to be seen as different."

A guide dog wouldn't suit either, as the family travel abroad so often; Isabelle is half French and half Spanish, and they regularly visit Europe. "What I would like is a GPS," says Alexia. "They're quite smart pieces of equipment – like the ones you have for a car but smaller." "The problem is it couldn't tell her if there was a hole in front of her," points out Isabelle.

Nevertheless, Alexia is stoical about her condition. Does she ever wish she didn't have it? "I'm totally indifferent," she replies. Is there anything she wishes she could do that she can't? "No, not really. I don't think I miss sports or anything like that."

"That's the one thing that makes us feel a bit better," says Isabelle. "She's said before, many times, that there is nothing that she wishes she could do that she can't do because she can't see. That to me is a huge relief."

"When you ask her straight out, would she rather see, she always says 'No, I'm perfectly happy how I am,'" Isabelle adds. "She thinks she can imagine things in a much more beautiful way than what you can actually see yourself." "I much prefer using my imagination, to be honest," agrees Alexia.

So what does the future hold for her? Alexia tells me she hopes to study at Cambridge and then become an interpreter – a job she had a taste of at the EU Parliament, aged just 10 – but only on a freelance basis, as she also wants to be an author.

But whatever she decides to do, Alexia's parents will always be enormously thankful to have such a clever, capable daughter.

"We are so proud of her," says Isabelle. "And it's not just me, as her mother – everyone who meets her says she's just so inspirational."

Here is the prologue to Alexia's novel, The Piccolo and the Voice. It tells the tale of a boy who fights to save a group of Jewish children in Nazi Germany – and is told from the point of view of his piccolo.

"I remember being handed to him for the very first time. I remember how he opened my case, looked at me in admiration and lifted me out gently, gently, so, so gently. The way he put me to his lips, dry from lack of water. The way his long, agile fingers moved nimbly, stroking me as though he truly thought of me as one of his race, or as a beautiful animal. I sang out of pure joy at being touched and owned by him, and I knew that from that moment on the bond of music was and would always be between us. A bond that could never be broken once it had been formed. Even after his death, his spirit would remain to play me with softness, feeling, love and skill. But good fortune and happiness is very far from being all I can remember. You may be part of that group of people who believe that an object such as me has no feelings, not thoughts, no senses, no memory, but if you wanted to know the truth, turn over the page and read everything that happened to me, my master and his friend in those terrible times. If you do not, close this book and forget everything you have read here so far. But I will never forget, as long as I am able to make music. I must not. I cannot. And neither would you."

Business

What's stopping your business from growing?

Founder and CEO of Cognition Global Concepts Nkem Mpamah advises entrepreneurs and businesses how to keep on top of their game

THE old axiom, "the only constant is change" holds true for business and life. For both, if you are not experiencing growth, you're possibly dying.

In business, the growth potential of entrepreneurs and leaders of organisations is sometimes challenged when they lose customers, followers or talents.

Regardless of how massive your customer base may be, this is a sad event to experience. But people's preferences change and what they like today, they tend to dislike next week.

Others move from places near you to distant locations, making it impossible for you to enjoy their custom any more. Change in demography also occurs and each of these factors impacts the growth of your business positively or negatively.

Sadly, many entrepreneurs and business leaders are not proactive. They're hard-wired to adapting to changing situations.

If your business is doing well today, praise God – but what if a major client leaves tomorrow, a great employee resigns or a major credit line is discontinued?

Consider your business or organisation as a car having comprehensive insurance cover, what would you do if those risks occur?

Implementing some contingencies to regularly check on your stability and provide support for you and your business operations will definitely save you some troubles in the long run.

Nowadays, it is no news hearing people talk about "plan B" but let's face the fact, do you have one in place? If you do, are you implementing it right now?

My experience of working with entrepreneurs and business executives tells me that majority of them know exactly what they should be doing, but the trouble is that they don't know where to begin, what to do first, second or third. Some of them have no time to do it.

Succeeding in life and business is like falling in love with your wife – you can't leave your wife at the mercy of another man and feel safe.

Delegation is great and I highly recommend it; but when delegating major activities, be sure you are in control.

If you are ambitious about growing your business, or nursing a feeling that your business should grow more, here are some suggestions I teach my clients at Business Mastery Summit.

1. Develop a crystal clear vision of where your business is headed.

CLEAR VISION: Nkem Mpamah

If you were going to somewhere you don't know, one of two things would likely happen – you might end up in a wrong destination, or waste your time and resources in futility.

You need to first develop clarity about your vision for the future of your business – a place where you and your organisation are excited about going.

Regardless of your current situation, your vision will keep you excited against the temporal dissatisfaction that current reality brings. Not having a vision may cost you a fortune.

2. Get organised and take control

It's important to know that you can't grow your business in the midst of complexities. This is quite a challenge for many entrepreneurs who are already experiencing distractions from social media platforms, unwanted emails, and hopeless reports about worsening economies.

Successful people are highly organised. If your house is not in order, your mind will not be at rest. If you have important un-responded emails, unattended calls, pending reports to write, or meetings to attend, every one of these will definitely get in your way of growing your business.

You need to get organised, clear all your messes, prioritise your time for the tasks that give you the most benefit, and then focus on them relentlessly.

3. Develop a success plan

If you are a small or medium size business, your success plan is the same as strategic plan for large corporations.

Many entrepreneurs don't take action because they don't know what to do first, second or third. Your success plan contains all the options you consider "most important," plus the step-by-step approach you must take in achieving them.

If you have a success plan with you, and implement it, you'll become practically unstoppable and experience consistent growth.

Coffee and cake at Barclays

CUSTOMERS were treated to something sweet when they dropped into their Barclays branch.

Employees in the Haverhill branch weren't afraid to get their fingers sticky in their efforts to raise as much as they could for charity Macmillan.

The bank raised an astonishing £718 in support of the annual World's Biggest Coffee Morning event on September 27 through offering visitors a homemade treat with a hot drink.

Mike Thomas, Branch Manager at Haverhill said: "It has been great to be involved in Macmillan's World's Biggest Coffee Morning once again this year.

DEBRA FOX

"It was a great day for both colleagues and our customers, and was fantastic to take the time to show the local community just why we are supporting Macmillan – the coffee break was just the icing on the cake."

Last year, Barclays employees across the country raised £640,000 for Macmillan, helping the charity to improve their support for those facing cancer. Visit macmillan.org.uk for more information.

Accountant on the shortlist for top business prize

A PRESTIGIOUS award could soon be in the grasp of a local accountant as he makes the shortlist.

Paul Donno, director at Jacobs Allen Chartered Accountants, could take home the Accounting Technician of the Year award at a London ceremony in November.

Jacobs Allen has bases in Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds and since Mr Donno merged his own accountancy practice with the company in March 2012 the business has gone from strength to strength.

The British Accountancy Awards will be held at a gala dinner on November 20. There will be an estimated 800 guests.

Mr Donno said: "The British accountancy awards is the pinnacle award in our profession and I am really pleased to have been shortlisted."

"This could not have been possible without a great team around me and I believe that the team at Jacobs Allen Chartered Accountants is absolutely first class in every way."

Jacobs Allen were in the running for Business of the Year in 2012, and they have also taken the title as winner of the St Nicholas Hospice Towergate challenge two out of the three years it's been running.

HMRC's let property campaign

A NEW campaign is encouraging "buy to let" landlords to disclose unpaid tax.

The scheme promises reduced penalties for those who declare their extras.

HMRC have been clamping down on errant landlords, but they are now being given the option to come clean first.

Keith Senior of Jacobs Allen Chartered Accountants & Tax Advisers in Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds has advised landlords to speak to an accountant or tax adviser before taking any action.

He said: "The Revenue is taking an increasingly tough stance and has vastly improved its information gathering powers, so don't ignore this opportunity, as they may already have information about your financial transactions and if they approach you, the penalties will be very much higher."

Bonkers

Jennifer

AS Jennifer Saunders heads for Cambridge Corn Exchange as part of this month's Ely Literary Festival, Simon Gage asks about her new autobiography, Bonkers, that Spice Girls musical – and whether or not we should expect an Ab Fab movie...

What should people expect from the evening?

The interesting thing about the evening in Cambridge is that my old friend Joanna – JoBo – is hosting it. She'll be questioning me because she does a lot of literary stuff round there. She interviewed Dawn (French) for her book and she's going to be my interviewer.

How does writing about yourself compare to creating comedy characters?

I suppose in a funny way I am sort of presenting a funny side of me, rather than... it is sort of true, really. Yes, you're presenting your quirks, and that is very like a character. In the book I suppose I am a character.

There's a lot of you in your characters anyway, isn't there?

Yes. Well there has to be, really. Because you have to do them. Certainly in Edina. They are just part of you, really.

Did Dawn French give you any advice? Did you read Dear Fatty?

Dawn just told me to do it on time! Which I failed to do! Only by a month though. But it was pretty tense by the end. And yes, I loved hers. But you see she found a really good way into it, which I thought was brilliant, which was through the letters. I think hers was lovely and brilliant and also very emotional.

In Bonkers, you talk about the characters you and Dawn created, Fatty and Grumpy, and they've stuck in a way, haven't they? People do think of you as the difficult one, don't they?

I suppose so but I don't really mind. There was always the thing that Dawn would do that if anything went pear-shaped, or an argument needed to be settled, then I would be sent in. Because I wouldn't have done a lot of talking up to that point, I would be sent in as the sort of final word.

How close to your real character is that though? Or are you just shy and inactive?

Yeah, both really. But I am quite good if it's really important to say something and I'm much better at it now.

And is it really the end of French and Saunders? Are you really never going to work together again?

We just retired the act, which was the French and Saunders sketches, the show, the act. I mean, we'll always work together, but it won't be (sings) French and Saunders, doop-di-woo-ee-woo. That's what we retired. Probably foolishly! (Laughs)

So what is in the future, apart from Bonkers?

I'm doing another Blandings this winter, then I've got a couple of little things bubbling under, one telly thing and a little film I want to get going. But they're really just at the talking stage at the moment. And I'm sort of quite enjoying that. I have this horror of my diary being filled up by silly little things. I'm trying to keep next year as a sort of think tank thing, and maybe the Absolutely Fabulous film is one of those things!

Is the Ab Fab movie ever going to happen?

Of, I don't know! You see, I've said no, and now I don't know. I honestly don't know. It's really got to come from me, which is a shame (laughs). The biggest shame of the whole thing is that I'm in charge (laughs)!

Jennifer Saunders (pictured below left with Dawn French and below right with Joanna Lumley in Absolutely Fabulous) appears at Cambridge Corn Exchange on October 15 at 7.30pm. Tickets £20 (£10 Cambridge News readers) from (01223) 357851 / www.cornex.co.uk

Season starts

EXCITING developments are afoot with the News-backed Cambridge Classical Concert Series, which opens this month at the Corn Exchange.

The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra have been named Orchestra in Residence at the Corn Exchange for the next three years. They will perform half of the concerts in the 2013/14 series and will end the series with world-famous cellist Julian Lloyd Webber delighting audiences with his soulful interpretation of Elgar's Cello Concerto.

The series opens on Thursday, October 17, with a visit from the acclaimed Tchaikovsky Symphony Orchestra of Moscow Radio, conducted by Denis Lotoev. The evening will open with Beethoven's uplifting Symphony No 4, suffused with high-spirited playfulness.

Countless composers have been drawn to Paganini's Caprice No 24 for inspiration but it is Rachmaninov's Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini which towers above all others. In this concert, piano soloist Noriko Ogawa will bring the piece's sprightly melodies brilliantly to life.

The concluding piece in this opening concert is Tchaikovsky's Symphony No

4, one of the most frequently performed symphonies of the 19th century.

On Tuesday, November 26, the Czech National Symphony Orchestra graces the Corn Exchange stage with an evening of works by Schubert, Bruch, Strauss and Dvorák, opening with Schubert's sweetly melodic Symphony No 8, his famously 'Unfinished' Symphony.

At the age of 25, violin soloist Chloë Hanslip has firmly cemented her reputation as an artist of distinction on the international stage. Her recent recordings for Naxos have received outstanding reviews and she won the Young British Classical Performer at the Classical Brits in 2003.

During this concert, she will give a sublime interpretation of Bruch's rich and lyrical Violin Concerto No 1.

The evening will continue under the baton of conductor Petr Altrichter with Strauss' sparkling and playful Die Fledermaus Overture.

The evening ends with Dvorák's Symphony No 7, which ranks amongst the composer's most celebrated and often performed works.

penultimate concert in the Cambridge Classical Concert Series, the Corn Exchange welcomes Switzerland's Basel Symphony Orchestra for the first time. Their concert on Sunday, April 27, will be conducted by Dennis Russell Davies, an acknowledged champion of modern classical music.

Featuring the charismatic cello playing of soloist Matt Haimovitz, the concert will open with Arvo Pärt's These Words, an ethereal and haunting piece inspired by Gregorian chants.

Philip Glass is one of the giants of 20th century classical music and his Cello Concerto No 2 is the resonant and meditative condensation of his score for Godfrey Reggio's critically acclaimed film Naqoyqatsi. John Adams' Harmonielehre, which concludes the concert, requires breathtaking orchestral resources and will fill the Corn Exchange stage in a way never seen (or heard!) by audiences before.

On Thursday, May 22, the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra will return for the final concert in the series with an evening of English music from Britten, Elgar and Vaughan Williams. Benjamin Britten's Four Sea Interludes (from the opera Peter Grimes) is a delicately poised piece, mirroring the shifting emotional tides of the characters in the opera.

Bookers of all six concerts in the series can save up to £50 by taking out a subscription.

film of the week

Le Week-End (15, 93 mins)

LIFE begins and also falls apart at 60 in the cinematic collaborations of director Roger Michell (Notting Hill) and screenwriter Hanif Kureishi (My Beautiful Laundrette).

In 2003, they sensitively explored the spiky issue of romance across the generational divide between grandmother (Anne Reid) and her grown-up daughter's hunky beau (Daniel Craig) in The Mother. There was a similar lightness of touch in the Oscar-nominated 2006 film, Venus, in which a septuagenarian thesp (Peter O'Toole) gets a twinkle in his eye around his twenty-something carer (Jodie Whittaker).

Laughter and heartbreak walk hand in clammy hand in Michell and Kureishi's latest confection, Le Week-end, an elegiac portrait of a married couple testing the robustness of their relationship during a celebratory weekend in Paris.

The French capital looks glorious and provides a suitably swoonsome backdrop to Kureishi's verbal grenades that explode with devastating impact.

Jim Broadbent and Lindsay Duncan, who played onscreen spouses in the 2006 TV movie Longford, spare themselves and each other few blushes as the husband and wife, who have watched their brood fly the nest and must now contemplate spending their twilight years solely in each other's company. Festivities start on a sour note when the two-star hotel that Nick has chosen turns out to be a dog-eared vision in beige.

Pacing meanders like Nick and Meg during their sojourn, and the narrative diversion with Jeff Goldblum (pictured) and his neglected son (Olly Alexander) doesn't ring entirely true. Yet the raw emotional honesty of Broadbent and Duncan shines through this fleeting fog of contrivance.

Turning Japanese

THEY are among the most spectacular sights of autumn, as their leaves turn sizzling shades of red, burnt orange and yellow.

Japanese maples, or acers, may be expensive but they are still as popular as ever, possibly because there are varieties for almost every situation, even if you have the smallest urban garden.

With slow-growing types that are suitable for pots, larger varieties which can create stunning backdrops and those which will drape above smaller rock plants, in woodland settings or as a framework to ponds, there's really no excuse not to have a Japanese maple in your garden.

They will grow happily on acid or alkaline soils, need sun for good foliage colour but should be kept clear of biting winds, which will burn their delicate foliage, or drought, which will cause their leaves to go brown at the tips.

However, they're not keen on chalk, so the soil needs to be lime free and preferably slightly acidic. I've had Acer palmatum var. dissectum 'Garnet' in ericaceous compost in a pot for five years and it has thrived, being kept well watered and sheltered from harsh winds. Replacing the surface compost of the pot with new compost every year will also help keep the nutrients flowing in a permanent planting.

Alternatively, plant them in large pots of John Innes loam-based compost for the best results, or a compost comprising equal parts John Innes No 2 and a soil-less multipurpose compost, which will hang on to water and nutrients more effectively.

Among the best for autumn leaves is the Acer griseum, whose foliage turns orange and brilliant red in autumn, and which has the added interest of craggy, peeling bark in shades of orange-brown and cinnamon, which is most noticeable in winter when the tree is bare. It grows to a height of around 10m (30ft).

Others will grow happily in containers, providing architectural structure and colour in areas which need them. Varieties ideal for pots include A. palmatum 'Garnet' and 'Corallinum', which are slow-

by Hannah Stephenson

growing and will stay a manageable size in a pot, producing deep rich red foliage before leaf fall.

Other good choices for autumn include the snake bark maples including Acer davidii 'George Forrest', with its red-stalked leaves, and the native field maple A. campestre, which has a broad, bushy habit and small green leaves which turn butter-yellow in autumn.

The coral bark maple, A. palmatum 'Sango-kaku', is renowned for its orange-red young stems which glow in winter light after the butter yellow autumn leaves have fallen. It's a good choice for a smaller garden because it has upwardly sweeping branches as a young tree.

For those growing acers in containers, repot the plant every three to five years, either back into the same container with fresh compost, or into a slightly larger one.

Remove the plant from its pot, then gently tease out the roots and cut back any large, coarse ones. Put the tree in the new container then fill in with fresh compost so the root ball sits at the same level as before. Water well and mulch to suppress weeds.

If the leaves turn brown during summer, chances are your plant's drying out. The leaves may also drop and the plant may appear dead, but if you water thoroughly and fork in well-rotted organic matter, it should recover.

Generally, Japanese maples don't need pruning, but if you do want to keep it in check, just thin out overcrowded branches leaving the rest evenly spaced, or just shorten the branches which have grown out too far by cutting them back to a side-shoot. And only prune when the plant is dormant, from November to March.

Rapid Spaceback prices announced prior to January launch

ŠKODA has announced prices and specifications for the new Rapid Spaceback ahead of its arrival in January.

The highly anticipated addition to the Škoda line-up will be available in three generously-appointed trim levels: S, SE and Elegance, with prices starting from £14,340 for the 1.2 TSI 86PS and peaking at £18,900 for the 1.6 TDI CR 90PS DSG.

With its striking exterior design, practical interior and advanced engine range, the new Rapid Spaceback introduces a dynamic new dimension to the Škoda range. The second model in the Rapid range, it sets sector standards for interior space and offers exceptional practicality thanks to its 415-litre boot.

Among the Rapid Spaceback's many styling options are a large panoramic glass roof and extended tailgate glass, which give the Rapid Spaceback a unique appearance.

The engine range comprises of three petrol and two diesel units. Power outputs range from 86PS to 122PS, with customers able to choose between manual and advanced DSG automatic transmissions. The line-up will also include a GreenLine version with CO2 emissions of just 99g/km. More details for Rapid Spaceback GreenLine will be confirmed soon.

Specification levels are generous, with aircon standard across the line-up, along with curtain airbags, front electric windows and a height- and reach-adjustable steering column.

Call Vindis Cambridge Škoda on (01223) 581583 for details.

FROM £14,340: The Skoda Rapid Spaceback has strong visual appeal

End of the road for the Defender, the 'Queen's favourite' transport

ONE of the most-loved and long-lived road vehicles, and a favourite with the Queen, is to cease production.

The last Land Rover Defender will be produced by Jaguar Land Rover (JLR) at Solihull in the West Midlands in December 2015.

Featuring in the Angelina Jolie film Lara Croft: Tomb Raider and in the latest James Bond movie, Skyfall, the Defender name can be traced back to the early 1990s.

But effectively, the popular 4x4 vehicle, which is exported all around the world, represents the continuation of the very first Land Rover which came on to the scene in April 1948 and was modelled on the war-time jeeps.

JLR has confirmed that Defender production will cease but has stressed a new replacement vehicle would join the Land Rover model range, which includes the Freelander, the Discovery and the Range Rover.

John Edwards, who has just been announced as the head of JLR's new individual products division, has said that the Defender is "known and loved the world over".

He has said the replacement would be "instantly recognised" by anyone who knows the current vehicle and the "core values of dependability and functionality" would be retained.

Mr Edwards was also reported as saying the new vehicle "won't necessarily be cheap".

Land Rover holds a royal warrant, as a supplier to the royal household. The royal relationship with Land Rover goes back to 1948 when King George VI viewed the original Land Rover.

The Queen, who has been pictured at the wheel of Land Rovers, took delivery of her first one shortly after coming to the throne in 1952 and has used Land Rovers ever since.

A JLR spokesman said today: "Production of Defender in its current format will stop at the end of 2015."

"A new replacement vehicle will join the Land Rover model range, but we have not yet announced the name nor any details of the new product."

"The Defender in its current format is coming to an end and we are looking at what the options are going forward."

Lack of cutting edge is costly for Borough

HAVERHILL Borough suffered a disappointing 1-0 loss defeat at Great Yarmouth in the Thurlo Nunn League, First Division.

Ben Cowling's team enjoyed plenty of possession throughout the match but created few clear-cut opportunities to score.

The early stages were played out mostly in midfield, with Yarmouth scoring what proved to be the winner in the 13th minute when a cross to the far post eluded both Gav Taylor and Tommy Hardwick, allowing Pete Oldham to head home.

Borough's first good chance came in the 29th minute when Callum Harrison surged into the Yarmouth penalty area and fired over the bar.

But their best chance came 10 minutes later when a well directed header found Ryan Weaver alone in space but his first-time volley was directed straight at Danny Cable in the Yarmouth goal.

Leighton Crux wasted a good chance for the hosts early in the second half, shooting wide of Liam Cutts' goal but much of the second half saw Borough enjoy the lion's share of possession but struggle to create any decent chances.

Mitch Forbes hit the bar for Yarmouth during a rare foray into the Borough half and Borough's day was summed up with six minutes remaining when Ross Elkin's goalbound shot was blocked by Borough substitute Craig Cutts.

Tappin gets Tough in Mudder battle

JACK Tappin had an alternative way to wind down a tough racing season by tackling the Tough Mudder at Cholmondeley Castle in Cheshire.

The 26-year-old Haverhill triathlete took on the 11-mile course which comprised more than 20 obstacles and is described by organisers as "probably the toughest event on the planet".

Before setting off, Mudders had to sign a 'death waiver' and pledge that the event was a challenge, not a race, and that helping fellow Mudders to complete the course was more important than their individual course time.

The obstacles included the Kiss of Mud, the Arctic Enema, the Cage Crawl, the Trench Warfare tunnels, the Underwater Tunnels, the Funky Monkey bars and the Mud Mile.

The Hero Carry forced competitors to carry a fellow competitor, the Hero Walls faced participants with 10ft high vertical walls to scale and the Walk The Plank saw them leap from a platform into the river.

Everest was the course's penultimate obstacle, a half-pipe ramp that had to be sprinted up before Mudders finally endured the Electroshock Therapy before crossing the finish line.

Having completed the course in 2hr 49min, Tappin said: "It was a good challenge and a different way to wind down the race season."

"I've been left pretty bruised and sore."

Tappin added: "It has not put me off participating in any similar events in the future."

Plant strikes twice as Wratting draw

FINLEY Plant's brace helped West Wrattling earn a point in their 4-4 draw with Cherry Hinton Lions in BM Kempton 9v9 League 12A.

A Jack Lisher effort and an own goal accounted for Wrattling's other scores.

Alex Sam got two and Oliver Santry grabbed the other as Aztecs White lost 4-3 to Willingham in Cambridgeshire Mini Soccer League 10C.

Haverhill Rovers White defeated Bottisham 7-3 in 8A.

In the Cambridge & District Colts League, Aztecs were pegged back from being 3-1 up to draw 3-3 with Godmanchester Rovers in 17A. Aztecs also lost 7-0 to Fulbourn Institute in the under-16 League Cup.

Condon savours Haverhill success

JACKIE Condon was the runaway winner of the Ladies October Midweek Medal at Haverhill Golf Club.

She carded an excellent round of gross 83, nett 68 to take the plaudits and cut her handicap by one to 14.

Doreen Darbey was second with nett 76, beating Sally Price on countback.

Catie Heathfield was the winner of the Ladies Medal with nett 72, one better than ladies' vice-captain Theresa Spittle. Mary Sail was third with 76.

In the Suffolk Captain's Day autumn meeting at Felixstowe, Haverhill's Chris Briggs was fourth with 40 points.

The Peter Grieves Trophy was won by Fynn Valley's Peter McCartney with 42 points.

Upavon's Peter White was second with 41 and he claimed the Millennium Trophy, with a combined 80 points for the spring and autumn meetings.

Briggs' autumn score meant he missed out overall on countback after also making 80.

No Dutch joy for Paffett

GARY Paffett could not hide his disappointment after finishing ninth in the penultimate round of the DTM championship at Zandvoort, the Netherlands.

He and his Mercedes team struggled with a lack of grip for much of the weekend and he qualified in 12th place, the best of the Mercedes drivers.

Paffett opted for an aggressive pitstop strategy in the hope it would help push him forward through the field and he brought his Euronics Mercedes AMG C-Coupe in for the first tyre change after just four of the 44 laps.

Rejoining in 17th, the Haverhill driver took advantage of his early stop when others came in and at one stage was as high as eighth.

He was unable to hold on to the position and after his second pitstop he did not have the grip for a longer stint and was overtaken by Mattias Ekstrom to finish ninth.

BMW driver Augusto Farfus won the race but the day belonged to Audi's Mike Rockenfeller, whose second-place finish was enough to secure the DTM title.

"It was a disappointing result," said Paffett.

"By starting 12th it was difficult to move forward so I couldn't do much more.

"I need to congratulate Mike Rockenfeller. He drove a fantastic season and earned the title. We tried to beat him and Audi but didn't have the success.

"I'm hoping at the season finale in Hockenheim I can have a better result and finish on a high note."

Paffett is level with BMW's Bruno Spengler in fifth place in the championship, four points from third. The final race at Hockenheim will take place on October 20.

Race ace: Gary Paffett in his Euronics Mercedes AMG C-Coupe during the DTM race in Zandvoort.

Line-up: Haverhill Rugby Club in front of their new posts, which came through a grant from the RFU.

Haverhill boosted by grant from the RFU

HAVERHILL Rugby Club has been chosen as one of the recipients of the Better Facilities Grants for the 2015 Rugby World Cup by the RFU.

The club, who play their home games at Castle Fields, will receive a Lead Up & Legacy Goalpost Safety grant, which will help enhance their facilities and provide a resource for use by the community.

"The new facilities will improve the quality of the rugby experience for everyone using the site and provide more playing opportunities, especially for local people in the 14 to 24 age group," said first-team captain Adam Hunt.

"This investment will also support the club's financial sustainability leading into the Rugby World Cup and will create a focus for England 2015 and a lasting rugby union legacy for rugby in the community.

"The new rugby posts and pads will help the club raise its profile and encourage more players, volunteers and spectators to share the special values that distinguish the sport."

David Halsey, the club chairman of senior playing, said: "We are delighted that our project has been chosen as a recipient for a Better Facilities Grant.

"We will now have some of the best facilities in the area that local people from Haverhill and surrounding villages can use during the week.

"The 2015 Rugby World Cup will inspire a new wave of people of all ages to become involved in rugby and this RFU investment will help our club to be even better equipped to welcome newcomers."

But there was not such good news for Haverhill on the pitch last weekend.

Ben Jones' try proved to be their only consolation as they were beaten 31-8 by Norwich Union in Eastern Counties Two.

Haverhill made the trip with six players out of position, but Norwich did not get into their half for the first 10 minutes.

Haverhill had three penalties in the early stages and without a kicker they went for touch, however, they failed to reach the touchline.

An injury to Hunt was telling, but he carried on for the rest of the game with a shoulder injury that took him to ground on regular occasions.

Three penalties and a converted try saw Norwich lead 16-0 at half time.

Norwich applied pressure from the restart and two missed tackles led them to score on 46 minutes for 21-0.

With 20 minutes to go, Joe Brown was unfortunately binned for a professional infringement.

Haverhill defended well but the man down soon told and within three minutes of the bin, Norwich hit 26-0 and five minutes later were 31-0 ahead.

After eight minutes of sustained pressure, Jones finally crossed the line and Hunt's conversion on the final whistle at least gave Haverhill some reward for their efforts.

Haverhill are at home to Hadleigh this Saturday.

Kingham claims opening goal as Rovers triumph

STUART Kingham helped Haverhill Rovers maintain their unbeaten record with the opening goal in a 4-2 triumph at home to Brantham in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division.

Kingham sneaked in around the back post from a corner and Luke Parkinson added to their tally in similar fashion.

Dan Cornwell made it 3-0 after getting in behind the defence to slot home only for the visitors to pull one back from the spot before the break.

Brantham reduced the arrears further, but Andrew Ofuso bagged his third goal in as many matches after being put through by Cornwell following a good move down the right to kill the game off.

Assistant boss Sean Greygoose said: "We looked very comfortable in the first half, but they changed their formation a little bit second half and that caused us a few more problems and they scored a second goal.

"We didn't play as much football as we'd like and the first three goals were from quite direct balls in behind.

"It was nice to see Dan Cornwell playing off the shoulder, not just holding the ball up and it's great to keep the unbeaten start going.

"Looking at it on Saturday, we had a really strong bench as well with players like Richard Gammon, Marc Abbott and Guti Bantaglia plus Tom Coombe, who has played a couple of games in goal and done nothing wrong."

But Rovers' hopes of a run in the Suffolk Premier Cup were dashed by a 2-0 defeat at home to Ryman League outfit Leiston on Tuesday.

They are back in league action at home to Gorleston on Saturday before travelling to Walsham Le Willows next Wednesday.

Greygoose said he hoped the crowd would continue to get behind the team as they had in recent weeks.

He said: "There was a gate of 140 at the weekend and it's nice to see such good support at the ground."
